

SHORTS-EXNER

Reception in Honor of Newly Married Couple.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Exner near town was lovely on Thanksgiving day in its decorations of autumn flowers and evergreen for visitors who came to welcome the new member of the family, the bride of Samuel J. Exner, who was Miss Annie Spinks of New Brunswick. The couple were married at the Methodist parsonage Wednesday evening by the Rev. G. T. Hughes.

A very sumptuous wedding dinner was served on Thanksgiving to a number of relatives and intimate friends. The out of town guests who shared the pleasures of the day were: Mrs. M. G. Gashman, Misses Lillian Coughman and Ernestine Derrick of Brookland and Wilbur Warner of Johnston. The popular bride will be greatly missed in her community.

During the world war Mr. Exner served nine months in France as a member of the artillery 32nd Division. He is now a progressive young farmer and business man. The happy young couple will make their home near Lexington.

DOTS FROM CENTERVILLE

The people are about through sowing grain.

Mr. Nolan Craps and wife visited his father, Mr. Calvin Craps.

Mr. J. J. Alevine and family visited Mr. J. G. Taylor Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Almont G. Taylor is preparing to move in the Cedar Grove section.

There is a good deal of sickness in this community at present, but we are thankful to say that none are seriously ill.

Mr. Willie Bedenbaugh and Miss Pearl Long were happily married Sunday evening. We wish them a long and happy life.

Guess Who.

Mr. Fred White Says, "Don't Idle Because You Only See One Rat."

"I did, pretty soon I found my cellar full. They ate my potatoes. After buying RAT-SNAP I got 5 dead rats. The rest later. They pass up the potatoes to eat RAT-SNAP." If there are rats around your place follow Mr. White's example. Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Harmon Drug Co.

Meet Me at Tapp's The Growing Store Meet Me at Tapp's

Our closing out sale is the most gigantic merchandising event in the history of Columbia. How very opportune for the consumers, coming right in the very heart of the fall and winter season. The great second floor teems with activity and vitality from morning until late at night, every day.

We cannot intelligently itemize and price the merchandise in the papers--nothing short of a personal visit can avail you anything. This is not a dream, nor a scheme, for Tapp is too practical to deal in either dreams or schemes. This sale is a roaring reality. Every Cloak, Suit, Dress, Dress Skirt, Shirtwaist, Blouse, all the silk and cotton Petticoats, and the whole stock of Muslin Underwear, as well as the entire Corset stock, are to be closed out. Horrible examples of price cutting must continue until those stocks are out of the house.

Distribution of profits is the watchword. Force will be used to accomplish this task by Christmas. There is virtue in this notable opportunity. Customers are breaking all records by supplying their needs for months to come. Crowds outnumber our ability to serve them, but they see and realize that we are doing our level best in the midst of this stupendous occasion and thanks to the well known, noted common sense of our noble Southern women hundreds wait on themselves, select their own merchandise. To facilitate this work and make selecting easy for the customer, we have the goods all carefully tagged.

You may think you will come to this actual closing out sale, but remember back of every thought to make it worth while, must be action. The women must adopt the business man's usages--be doers, be movers, be alert. This closing out sale is different; it's very acuteness must penetrate the shrewd buyers brains, for we are bringing the people from all over this state, groups from the inner circles of society from other cities wanting Silk Underwear, Evening Gowns and Wraps, fine Corsets, etc., are shopping here almost daily.

We take our bitter medicine as gracefully as we can. We are traveling over a rough road. The wheels of progress are crushing the life out of our profits, but why dwell on this unpleasant side of the situation. Business experience seems to demand this closing out sale. Our policy of closing out the stocks regardless of consequences, by Christmas will be rigidly adhered to.
